Water trading was introduced to enable the movement of water to its highest value use thus encouraging more efficient use of our scarce water resources. Nine years on is the Water Management Act achieving its purpose?

Julie Briggs and Georgiena Ryan will review the status of water trading in New South Wales including:

- reviewing the basics of water trading
- impediments to trade in New South Wales under the current system
- impact of the Commonwealth Water Act on corporations and schemes
- role of ACCC
- what is happening with the buybacks?
